

What Does the Registration Fee for Facilitator Training Cover?

Your registration fee for Positive Discipline in Everyday Parenting (PDEP) Facilitator Training covers the following:

- Five full days of high-quality training by two PDEL-Certified Lead Trainers
 - Evidence-based content on child development, health promotion, and trauma-informed facilitation.
 - A methodology for putting child rights principles into practice.
 - A practical framework and well-tested process to help parents shift from punishment to problem-solving in their everyday interactions.
- Full set of materials to deliver PDEP parent programs
 - One copy of the 354-page PDEP Facilitator Manual, a complete guide to delivering the PDEP program.
 - Supplementary materials to support your program delivery including one copy of the 287-page spiral-bound PDEP parent book.
 - Access to downloadable program materials in English and French through a password-protected portal on the PDEL website.
- Support as you deliver your first PDEP parent program
 - Three semi-private mentorship sessions with a Lead Trainer as you and your co-facilitator deliver your first parent program.
 - Weekly email support from your Lead Trainer throughout your first program.
 - 14 free parent books valued at $280 to give to parents participating in your first program (you pay $42 for shipping costs).
- Participant feedback from your first PDEP parent program
 - A report summarizing responses from the anonymous and ethically approved parent questionnaires you will administer in your first program (required).
 - Reports from parent questionnaires you administer in subsequent parent programs, should you choose to do so (recommended).
- Certification and Post-Certification Support
 - A formal certificate issued by PDEL when all requirements are completed.
 - Newsletters and bulletins from PDEL about upcoming events, updates to materials, news about PDEP from Canada and around the world.
 - Continuing access to the PDEL training team for support.
 - Opportunities to connect and learn with the PDEP Facilitator community.
